

The Governor of Tehran emphasizes on following the example of the martyrs

The Governor of Tehran emphasizes on following the example of the martyrs; By observing health protocols, we will preserve the sanctity of the blood of the martyrs who defended health

Referring to the day of the martyr, the governor of Tehran emphasized on keeping alive the memory, name and memory of the martyrs and explaining the rights of this group, reviving, preserving and spreading the culture of self-sacrifice and martyrdom

According to the Tehran governor's information base; Anoushirvan Mohtashemi said: In commemoration of the 22nd of Esfand (Martyr's Day) and the need to promote the culture of self-sacrifice and martyrdom

She continued: "Today, it is our duty to be grateful to them and to work to preserve the ideals of the martyrs and the values of the Islamic Revolution"

The Governor of Tehran stated: Keeping alive the memory, name and memory of the martyrs and explaining the rights of this group, reviving, preserving and expanding the culture of self-sacrifice and martyrdom by using the cultural capacities of Martyrs' Remembrance Day and introducing and institutionalizing this day as Martyrs' Remembrance Day One of the purposes of naming this day

Mohtashemi then pointed out that in order to fight against Corona, the martyrs who defended their health also lost their lives and emphasized: Observance of health protocols, social distance and the use of masks should be taken seriously and unnecessary trips should be avoided according to the Ministry of Health No difficult situations

She also said that the officials should maintain the sanctity of the blood of the martyrs who defended health by taking appropriate measures and providing the necessary conditions to deal with the corona and the citizens by accompanying and observing the health protocols